

Refrigerator Not Cooling?

The Number # 1 call we get from guests after checking in.

This issue is caused from inserting more room temperature or HOT items into the fridge than cold items.

In order to keep the already cold items cold, the fridge first has to first cool the warmer items.

The typical scenario we see is when guests place warm or hot drinks in the fridge along with cold milk. The temperature of the milk gets warmer as the drinks slowly get colder. Eventually the milk and the drinks will drop to the normal temperature of 35 - 37 degrees. Depending on the amount warm drinks or warm items added, this cooling could take as long as 24 hours.

We always suggest placing only a few warm items into the fridge at a time allowing for them to cool.
